All that we can make out of the telegraph c report of this paper is that the tri l. and that he records his d ssent (- m the contrary action of the Senate in the p t ag h mself as he w shes to be on th record, and this is probably the substance of the paper. When we get a correct copy right though, it must be confessed, the preceden's appear to be against him. But may not the opposition of the precedents e apparent only? We think that it is. The precedents all relate to cases in which the Sens'e tried impeachment without any charge of its presiding officer, and wheresaid to have resolved itself into a court of impeachment whenever it proceeded to consider anything pertaining to the trial of impeachment, for this is really all that the expression signifies, but in the present case, the Chief Instice must preside, and the Sena'c, consequently, cannot resolve itself into a court of impeachment, and the Sena'c, consequently, cannot resolve itself into a court of impeachment, and the Sena'c, consequently, cannot resolve itself into a court of impeachment, and the Sena'c, consequently, cannot resolve itself into a court of impeachment. solve itself into a court of impeachment, are carried out by the erection of negro or, what is the same thing, proceed to connot the recognition of this distinction the entire country. It seems to us mere dream of the past, and the rivets of In this point of view, the position of the Ch ef Justice is not only right in itself, but consistent with all the precedents, for, no radical President" And upon what is change whatever in the Senate having been this assertion based? Their past career necessary to try impeachment in those has been marked with naught but revolucases, the Senate, to all intents and purposes, resolved itself into a court of impeachment by the very act of proceeding to consider the business of impeachment. Strictly speaking, therefore, the Senate heretofore has always resolved itself into a court of impeachment before it has taken any step bearing on the trial of impeachment. The tion has followed from the perfect dentity of the Senate and the court. But the pending case is different. In this, the court is not the Senate absolute, but the ness and infamy, they have denied the siding officer. The transition from the one right of a sovereign State to select her own function to the other cannot be so readily and insensibly made. Herein appears to Thomas; and Kentucky has been subjectlie the whole mystery. When the Presied to the indignity of disfranchisement in dent is not tried, the Senate is a court of the persons of two of her most cherished impeachment whenever it turns to the bussons. Whenever necessity requires it, any iness; but, when the President is tried, the number of members or delegations will be Serate cannot become a court of imr; elled upon some pretext. sumed to sit as a court of impeachment This seems to us to be the correct view: but the matter, so far as we can see, is not of much practical consequence. It the counsel for the President should of ject to any of the rules as invalid on this account, and the Senate duly sitting should sustain the objection, the main reeult would be the adoption over again of the same rules in due form. The point, as we conceive, is mainly theoretical But it is not for this reason unworthy of

The Federal Constitution provides that the President may send messages to Congress. But suppose Congress enacts that he shall not. Which shall he followthe constitutional provision or the Congressional enactment? Must he, in spite of the distinct constitutional provision obey the enactment until it is decided by the Judicial Department of the govern ment to be unconstitutional? What if Congress should pass a law ordering him to arrest and keep in prison all the Judges of the Supreme Court and all the mem bers of his Cabinet? Would he be bound to keep them incarcerated until the incarcerated court should pronounce the law unconstitutional? Such is the absurd doctrine of the leading radicals. Mr. Doutwell represents, in a singularly well proportioned degree, the intellect, the malevelence, and the carnestness of the impeachment. Unquestionably the ablest man connected with the movement, he brings to it all the bitterness of Sumner without his id ocy, all the vigor of Ashley which is extensive, will come into good where the Senate, his is howbedge of precedents, which is extensive, will come into good WILLIAMS, OF PENNSYL VANIA. Williams, of Pennsylvania, comes dece-en the list. He is an old gentleman-more than sixty, I take it, short, thick, full-faced and gray-headed. To him be-longs the honor of the anthorship of the byterian minister as to manner, voice, and appearance in a private company.

There is very little of the politician about him, but much of the statesman and too much of the puritan. He is least than fifty years of age, of haudsome looks, black hair and whiskers, and a countenance that betokens the scholar and the student. His speeches have always, to my mind, been marked by an utter absence of demagogism, and a full trust in strength of argument to carry all the points before it. He brings to the decision of every subject the most thoughtful, and we would think, to hear him speak, the most prayerful attention, if prayers and politics could co-exist in the same mind.

Mr. Boutwell was Democratic Governor of Massachusetts once, and was a Democratic member of the House, and was a Democratic flowernor of the antons the look pains to disclaim. Suffice it to say that it is a splendid vindication of the historical truth of Martia Chuzzlewit, so far as that book relates to the style of our public men. Williams is a vain old person, who imagines himself the be-all and the ead-all of the House, if the world. He speaks with tremendous voice, and thinks himself abundantly competent to lay down the law and the Gospel to any body. I don't know what he was put on the committee of seven what he was jut on the committee of seven for, except as an unavoidable tribute to his vauity, for the fly on the cart-wheel was not more fully persuaded that he was furscheme. Many were the surming of citizens as to the character and object of the resulting party, some insisting that they were friends of the prisoner, while others were equally confident that they were friends of the deceased, who were determined to average his death. None knew the truth, as the whole affair was conducted by strangers. Yesterday morning a rumor was rife that the body of the murderer was hanging to a tree in the cemetery, near the grave of Bicknell. Hundredsof curious and credulous persons hurried to curious and credholus persons harried to the spot only to be deceived by the hoax. beloved member of my congregation.

This appeared to stagger Walker for a moment, but he recovered his usual cool demeanor, and inquired whether it were possible, within the short time that was left to him, that he could repent and be saved. Reverend Mr. Otis referred to the thief on the cross as the only libble instance within his knowledge. Walker then wanted to know if the thief, in whose bebalf the dying Saviour had interposed, was a highwayman, and finally, whether was a highwayman, and, finally, whether "he was a murderer." It was evident that the miserable man appreciated his condition. Brownlow, they said, would not ermit Walker to suffer the extreme per ally of the law. The very heinonsness of the crime would, as matters now went, entitle him to executive elemency. This was expressed with all apparent sincerity and honesty by both old and young.
Some of the circumstances connected of the President of the United States, and I am now ready to take the oath.

The following oath was then administered to the Chief Justice by Judge Nelson.

"I do solemnly swear that in all things pertaining to the trial of the imp-achment of Andrew Johnson, President of the United States. I will do impartial justice according to the Constitution and laws, so help me God."

The Chief Justice then said:
"Sanators: The oath will now be ad-

"SENATORS: The oath will now be administered to the Senators, as they will he seld by the Secretary, is succession."

The Secretary then called the roll, each Senator advancing in turn and taking the oath prescribed in the rules. The only Senators absent were Messrs. Doolittle, Edmunds, Patterson of New Hampshire, and Saulsbury. When the name of Senator Wade was called, Mr. Hendricks rose ptial effice, was entitled to sit as a idential effice, was entitled to sit as a judge in the case.

Mr. Sherman argued that the Constition itself settled that question. It provided that, the presiding officer should not preside on trial of impeachment of the President, but being silent as to his right to be a member of the court, it follows by implication that he had the right.

Mr. Howard argued to the same effect.

Mr. Johnson assimilated this claim to

Mr. Hendricks claumed that when Mr.

Wade should cease to be pres ding over of the Senate he could be sworn in, but now he was incompetent. In the case of Senator Stockton, of New Jersey, the q estion had been dec'ded. It was there held that the Senator being inter st-ed in the result of the vote, had no right store. He hoped the motion of the Sen ator from Maryland would prevail.

The debate was continued at great length by Mesers. Davis, Hendricks, and layard against Mr. Wades right to sit as a member of the court, and by Mesers. Morril, of Maine, Williams, Howard, Morton, Sherman, Sumper, Hawe, Prake, and Thayer in favor thereo.

Mr. Morton argued that there was no person here anthought to make discountered. send for persons and papers.

erson here anthorized to make o jec Why was not the Senator from Unio eworn? The theory of his colleague (Hendricks was false. This impeachment was to be tried by the Senators. The Set attor from Ohio was a Senator, and his rights as such could not be taken from him. Ilis e ection as presiding officer took from him none of his rights as sen.

I'm. His election as presiding officer took from him none of his rights as a Sentor. He repeated that there was no person here entitled to raise a question.

Mr. Howe contended that the question of law was clear. The Senator from Unio was entitled to participate in this trial. If the Constitution was silent on the surject no one would have challenged the right of the presiding officer of the Senate to preside on this trial. The Constitution, however, had provided for that question, and had gone no further. If any objection did exist to the Serator from Ohio, the only party who had a right to raise the objection was not here and not represented here.

Mr. Theyer argued that if the question of interest was to be raised in the case of the Senator from Ohio, it ought, with greater reason, to be raised against the Senator from Tennessee, who was so closely allied to the President. Besides. corv Senator who might succeed to the succe of presiding officer was also intersted but one degree less than the Senator

Mr. Howard desired to call the attenton of the chair to the real matter before the body, and inquire whether the pending motion, that the other Senators be event in, was in order.

Chief Justice Chase replied a Trma-hr Howard suggested that he could not see the necessity of expending further time on the motion. It was a pure question of order. The Senate of the United States was endeavoring to put on judicial furctions.

After some further debate, the court of impeachment, at half-past three, adjoirned till one o clock to-morrow, and the Senate immediately afterwards adjourned.

South of the line of 41 degrees this storm was accompanied by ratu, and its some places by a slight epithkle of snow. North of that line there was no rain, but a fall of snow almost unprecedented at any time, snow almost unprecedented at any time, but never equaled as late in the season as March. This depth of snow, rendered incre obstructive to traveling because of its drifting and its close massing, under the force of a furious wind, extended as fur eastward, north of the line of the Pittsburg and fort Wayne railway, as New Ingland. It was particularly severe in Michigan and Western New York.

shows a rapid extinguishment of State

St. Louis, March 2, 1868. The political tempest has abated, the storm cloud in the east has virtually disappeared, and again our city wears its usual paceful aspect. No longer do bulled the storm of t letius, hearing ominous and inflammato.y tidings from Washington, disfigure the entraces to the buildings of our "Dailies," trances to the buildings of our "Duites," we longer nate crowds of anxions citizens and leated politicians seen standing "round the corners." The premature cry of "matms" is hushed, and we are ourselves again, though still we look with interest and avidity in the daily telegrams from our capital—all eager to know what course the Senate will now take. Gladare we to know that they have shown nerve enough to oppose the resultion for the suspension of the President during the

He was one of the first who advocated strenuously the anti-slavery doctrine in this State. Herectoforche was a strong Republican, and for many years the intrepid leader of the German element in this city. He spent the short term in Congress, and during the war figured prominently as a Federal General, and I must say to whom is as much credit due for the taking of Vicksburg as to Ulysses S. Orant. Gen. Blair is a shrewd and cunning politician and bold leader. We do not think he claims to be a statesman; though, if elected, he would whose works are on Oxford street, not far from the British Museum. When S.: Henry Meux came of age in 1-11, his slare in the house was valued at $1,000, a statesman; though, if elected, he would doubtless steer the ship of Stateskilfully through the coming storms. The two lat-ter, Hon, Sam. T. Glover and Col. James O. Brondhead are among our ablest and nost prefound lawyers—either one of whom would be a great honor to the State it was valued at $5,000,000. A brewer can much better increase his income than an Itarl, and cannot so readily diminish it, it only a partner in a good house. The harl of Jersey is barely twenty-two years old, and his racing stud is for sale at Itatersall's. Already the money-lenders and sporting sharps have picked him bare. Every young man of great properly and expectations is surrounded by a crowd of cormorants, ready to lend him any amount of money and to great strip his sporting bases. -and of whom well ought we be proud.
Col. Broadhead was one of our Provost Marshal Generals during the recent war, and was decidedly the most efficient and popular man we had in that position. He would make a fine Governor. He ranks as one of our most profound lawyers, and whose practice is as large and lucrative as any in our city. Two or three years ago le came of age, to the amount of thirty or forty thousand pounds, and his debts on cotting of age were rearly one hindred thousand punds—Lendon Cerrery nelected of the New York Times.

When Prederick II, of Prussia set up a limited papier mache rannagery at Berlin in 17th house risday last with a cargo of fruit, made the 23d of January, while in latitude wind (northcast trade), 17.5-10 knots in a single hour. This is the fastest time ever made by any sailing vessel, and had she been permitted two points off—for she was kept too searer to the wind than any slip could be brought—she would, in all probability, have shown by her log a clean pair of helight for twenty knots. These was done. When we think of a psalm surg by 1.000 voices pealieg through the editice made of rags, and the universal element bound down to carry our messages with the speed of Fight, it would be presumtuous to say what cannot be achieved by science and art under the training of steady old. The Anglo Saxon and the Latin Portianions in New Orleans.—It is estimated that 40,000 Spaniards, by hirth and immediate descent, are living in Louisiana. They are most numerous in this and the parishes of St. Bernard and Natchitoches. About the lakes many are engaged in fishing. The lower section of New Orleans is called "Spanish Town," and contains many relies of the eld resime—Spanish architecture, Spanish faces, and Spanish reserve and exclusiveness. Many of the old residents of this quarter, born on this soil, have never crossed Canal-st., which is the admitted boundary line between the Latin and Anglo-Saxon populations. In 1865, during the so-called seven days war, Prussia lost 16 military surgeons, whilst S others were wounded. Of the 16, the latest fewer shades. three years acquired a certain importance, owing to the discovery of a large bed of amber. This bed is situated near the Cape Korning, and is believed to be extensive. Four steam dredgers are comployed for the collection of the amber, as whilst 8 others were wounded. Of the 16, the deaths from cholera were 14. The llussian armies, during the campaigns from 1853 to 1856, lost through war and disease 382 military surgeons. The ratio of military surgeons killed and wounded in the Crimean war was higher than that of other officers. In the Algerian campaign, the loss of French military surgeons was one in six, whilst that of the combatant officers was one in thirteen. ell as a cousiderable number of dredger worked by hand. The Springfield Republican styles the proposed action of Congress with regard to Alabama "simple fraud."

A submarine cable from Nassau to New York is recommended by the Governor of New Providence, depth of from ten feet to twelve feet. The dredging is carried on day and night, by shifts of eight honrs each. About four hundred persons are employed at this work, and their wages are on the average twenty-two silver groschen (2s 64) per shift. The quantity of amber collected is considerable, amounting to about 2ss pounds per shift, and for six days work 5, lwi pounds. The sand is sent in shore, when it is washed in order to find the amber.

The office outurs of both steamers, inclinding some books and papers, shared the general destruction. Volney Woolfolk, clerk, and Jo Bailey, mate of the Scott, lost their entire outlits of clothing, and were walking around town disconsolate, with their only shirts upon their backs. We may be permitted to state here that there never floated that steamer whose opening career gave richer promise of reward to her owners than did the M. S. Mepham, when Jewett Wilcox, Esq. now a popular hotel keeper of Cairo, was co-owner and clerk of her. He sold ont regretfully when he had been connected with her about sixty days running time, receiving what he had paid for his interest and his share of the profits, which amounted in that short period to fifieen per cent on the amount invested. Her last owners, we believe, were perfectly well satisfied with her success subsequently.—Missouri Democrat.
